

GIANTS USE PIRATES AS RUNGS IN LADDER

Climb Up to Stronger Lead by Able Aid of Matty's Good Right Arm.

The Giants drew a mite further away in the fight for the National League flag by trouncing the Pirates yesterday for the third successive time. The score was 6 to 2. Christy Mathewson, "Big Six," who was beaten by the Pittsburgh crew in the first game of the series on Thursday, came back strong and pitched in rare form. Consequently the combination from the Smoky City never had even a look in at the game, although they tried to look threatening two or three times. As the Cubs were unable to get better than an even break in their hitting, the New York nine is now resting comfortably in first place, with a lead of nine points, about a full game. During their brief stay in the metropolis the Pirates have received a body blow and are now three games behind the leaders.

SCORE SIX TALLIES TO TWO

"Big Six" Keeps Bingles Well Scattered, While Camnitz Proves 'Just What the Doctor Ordered.'

Mathewson warmed up in a way that betokened that he was fit to lead the Pirates were not slow in discovering that the manager was not a mere talker, but a doer. In one inning Matty so far forgot himself as to let them have two safe ones in a bunch. All the others were scattered frugally throughout the remaining eight innings and were productive of nothing but good dreams. The two safeties aforementioned were responsible for the brace of runs the Pirates scored.

But with the Giants things in the hitting line were far different. Camnitz was just to their liking, and in the five innings he filled the box they slammed his offerings for six hits. Leifeld, who relieved the first Pirate twirler, was all right in spots, but the Giants finally got at him and pounded out five hits and a substantial lead.

The game was one in which there were not many thrills—the water soaked field took care of that—for fielders and base runners alike were taking headers on the slippery diamond or outfield. A shower in the early part of the game made handling the ball anything but an easy proposition, and while the rain was at its worst the Pirates made a whole flock of errors, which did not count very strongly against them, although they never did get quite over the habit of fooling with the ball. Seven errors in all were charged against the visiting line, and their work in the field was conspicuous in contrast with their play in previous games, in which they did not make a single error in twenty-seven innings.

Despite the cloudy aspect of the Harlem sky and the rain drops that began to come down with more frequency as the time for the game drew near, a crowd that filled the available space in the new stands was on hand and the bleachers, too, were pretty well populated. Long before the gates were thrown open the advance guard of the mob began to lay siege to the entrances and when the barriers were finally swung back there was a stampede. Each train brought its hundreds, and when the time began their final parade on a seat was to be had in the lower stand. Even then the crowds continued to come in hundreds, and when the game was at last begun fully twenty-five thousand of the faithful were packed solidly in the amphitheatre.

Larry Doyle figured in quite another role from the one he played on Friday, for he accepted every fielding chance that came his way with alacrity, and to cap the day's work, whaled out a home run into the right field stands. In the third inning he helped put Mathewson out of a bad hole. With men on second and third and two out, Clarke stung a hard drive at the second baseman, which Doyle, after stopping it, shot over to Merkle in time to get his man and retire the side. All in all, he played a star game.

The Giants got back into their stride in the base stealing line and grabbed off bases right under Gibson's nose. Two were steals of home that swelled the Giants' total by just two runs. Merkle got two of the stolen bases, one a steal of second in the sixth inning and the other a steal home just a moment later when he and "Big Chief" Meyers worked a double steal. Incidentally, Meyers had a great day with the bat, getting three safe hits. Herzog also seemed to have the plate in safety in the fourth inning, when he and the Indian catcher worked out a double steal. Meyers was caught in the attempt, but he did not sacrifice himself in vain, for Herzog had no trouble in scoring. On the other occasion both runners were safe.

It was a bad omen for Pittsburgh when the sun chose to come through its cloud blanket the moment Herzog's Merkle made a run for the first out of the game. Although Carey smashed out a hit to right field that was good for three bases, because Becker had a lot of trouble floundering around on the slippery grass after the ball, the Pirates were unable to score, as the next two men up were easy outs.

For the home players, however, things broke a little differently in the opening round. Before crooked ball was double down to Clarke, and went all the way home when McKeechle was unable to hold Camnitz's throw of Doyle's hit in front of the plate. Camnitz duplicated the misplay when Snodgrass bunted, and all hands were safe. The pair tried for a double steal, but Gibson diagnosed the play so accurately that Doyle was caught feet off the third sack, although Snodgrass was safe. At that there was a run out, and things looked bad for the Giants when Merkle made a bad throw to McKeechle on Becker's drive. Snodgrass was caught napping off third and run down by Byrne and Gibson, and the inning—and also the Giants' hopes—to smash when Merkle lifted a fly to Carey.

"Chief" Meyers got a two-base drive down the left field foul line with two out in the second inning, but was left stranded when Matty fanned. The next frame, however, was a little more lucrative, for it was in that session that Doyle swung on the ball for his home run, and did a lot toward unsettling Camnitz. Herzog's single in the fourth also helped the Giants' side of the ledger, because it was followed by Fletcher's sacrifice and a Texas leaguer by Meyers that advanced Herzog to third. It was then that the occasion arose for a double steal, and while Meyers was playing tag with McKeechle and Miller, Herzog raced across the plate. Almost the same series of plays let Merkle score another run. The Pirates managed to reach second in safety that time, however, and when Mathewson singled he was in a fine position to score.

It was not until the eighth that the Pirates actually got their feet on the plate, and then the trouble started, when Littleton, the Pirates' grounder just a little too hot to handle. With two out, Clarke singled to right, and Wilson sent both men across the plate for the visitors' only tally when he doubled down the left field line.

Just to take off the edge of these two runs the Giants came back in their half

CAPABLANCA'S GOOD TRIP
Cuban Chess Master Makes Brilliant Showing in Games Abroad.
Although a place had been reserved for him by the management of the Carnegie International Chess Masters' Congress, Jose R. Capablanca, the Cuban chess champion, did not go to Bohemia. He is now on his way back to New York, by way of Europe, after a sojourn of a couple of months in South America. A month was spent at Buenos Aires, but he also spent a week at Montevideo, where J. F. Bernasini, the local champion, drew against the visitor in a brief single game. The game was a draw, but Bucla was the only one to score against Capablanca, who, in other respects, made a clean sweep.

At Bahia Blanca the Cuban played twenty games simultaneously, winning nineteen and drawing one. The Jockey Club of La Plata likewise engaged the young master for a few days. At Buenos Aires (Capablanca played, all told, eighty-eight games, of which he won seventy-eight, lost three and drew seven. The details follow:

Superbas Rise and Break Even in Double-Header.

Beats Windy City Team in First Game, Helping the Cause with a Timely Hit.
Chicago, Aug. 26.—Philadelphia took both games from Cleveland today by scores of 7 to 5 and 6 to 3. The Naps outscored the Athletics in the first contest, but Krapp's wildness and infield errors overbalanced that advantage. Combs was finally taken out in the ninth, Plank proving a mystery and saving the game for Philadelphia. Baker's batting was timely. In the second game the Athletics were behind until the sixth, when they jumped on Falkenberg for two singles, two doubles and a triple, scoring four runs.

INDIANS ARE DEFEATED

Take Double-Header from Cleveland Naps with Ease.

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—Philadelphia took both games from Cleveland today by scores of 7 to 5 and 6 to 3. The Naps outscored the Athletics in the first contest, but Krapp's wildness and infield errors overbalanced that advantage. Combs was finally taken out in the ninth, Plank proving a mystery and saving the game for Philadelphia. Baker's batting was timely. In the second game the Athletics were behind until the sixth, when they jumped on Falkenberg for two singles, two doubles and a triple, scoring four runs.
